ASPARAGUS

Asparagus is one of the most satisfying crops a home gardener can have. It takes time to get a good asparagus bed started, but once established it continues to yield year after year, with very little attention. Cut when young and tender—somewhat earlier than normal commercial practice—the stalks are especially delicious, and are rich in vitamins and minerals.

Earliest cuttings can usually be made late in May, and continued well into July.

When starting from seed, sow early in the spring in shallow drills about 12 inches apart. When plants are 4 inches high, thin out to 3 inches apart. Let plants grow until the following spring, then transplant to a permanent bed.

If time is more important than cost, you can save a year by buying asparagus roots and planting them directly in the permanent bed. In either case, stalks should not be cut the first year the plants are in the bed. When two year old roots are used, yield during the first year of cutting will be somewhat greater than with transplanted plants.

Asparagus will grow well in almost any soil that is not too wet, but a well-drained sandy soil is best. Plants develop better, and are ready for cutting somewhat earlier in the spring. The bed should be dug rather deeply (at least 8 inches) and plenty of manure should be worked in. Plants or roots should be set 1½ feet apart in rows 3 feet apart. Set so that the "Crown" is about 3 inches below the surface; cover lightly at first; then fill in as the plants grow.

Allow ample margin around the bed. Asparagus roots spread horizontally, and if planted too close to the edge, shoots will soon invade adjacent areas.

Mary Washington: Plants are vigorous, very productive, and nearly rust-free. Shoots are dark green with heavy purple overtone. Quality is excellent.

Seed: Pkt. 15¢; oz. 40¢; ¼ lb. $1.10; lb. $3.50.
Roots (2 yr. old): Doz. 95¢; 50, $2.75; 100, $5.00.

BEANS

(Snap or "String")

Snap or "string" beans (actually, all varieties offered today are stringless) are among the most popular of all garden crops. Many varieties are used: flat or round pods; green or wax; bush or pole. All have much the same food value, except that the green varieties contain calcium as well as iron and are also an excellent source of Vitamin A.

Choice of varieties is largely a matter of personal preference. The bush varieties are usually selected for the home garden because they mature in less time, require less space and give somewhat less trouble. However, the bearing season is short, so that several plantings, two or three weeks apart, are necessary to provide a steady supply. The pole varieties mature more slowly, but continue to yield until frost.

In all varieties, the flavor is best if the beans are picked when the pods are young and tender.

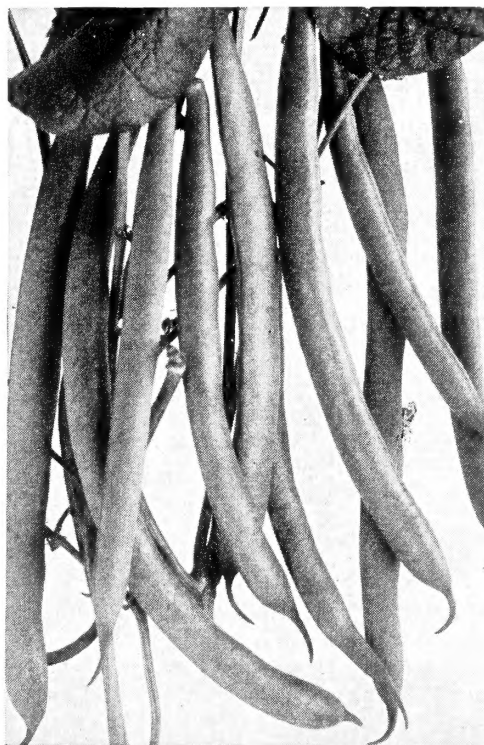

BUSH BEANS can be planted as soon as the ground warms up. Plant 2 to 3 inches apart in rows 2 to 2½ feet apart. Early plantings should be 1½ to 2 inches deep; later plantings 2½ to 3 inches.

POLE BEANS should be planted only after warm weather begins. The poles should be firmly fixed in the ground, 3 to 4 feet apart. Plant 6 to 10 beans around each pole, about 2 inches deep. When plants come up, remove the weaker ones, leaving 3 or 4 to each pole.

$\frac{1}{2}$ pt. 35¢; pt. 60¢; qt. \$1.00; pk. \$4.95; bu. \$18.00.

BEANS (Lima)

Young, garden-fresh lima beans are a welcome and valuable addition to the family diet. Flavor is excellent, food value high, and they are exceptionally good sources of iron, phosphorous, and vitamin B₁.

The bush varieties mature more quickly, but the pole varieties yield larger crops and continue to bear for a longer period.

Lima beans should not be planted until the weather is really warm. Bush varieties should be planted 4 to 5 inches apart and the plants later thinned to stand 8 to 10 inches apart. Rows should be $2\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 feet apart. Pole varieties should be planted in hills at least 3 feet apart each way, with 4 to 6 beans in each hill. Cover to a depth of about 1 inch.

BUSH VARIETIES

Baby Fordhook: 70 days. Thick, small beans, of excellent quality, which remains green for a long time. Especially suitable for canning or freezing. Extra heavy producer.

BEETS

Beets are hardy, quick growing and usable long before they reach full maturity. Beet tops, young, crisp, tender and fresh from the garden make excellent "greens" and are exceptionally good sources of Vitamins A and G. The young roots—"baby" beets have a flavor and tenderness unknown to those who have tasted only the mature beets.

Beets, Early Wonder

Seed can be sowed as early in the spring as the ground can be worked. Sow in drills, covering seed to about 1 inch depth. Drills can be as little as 12 inches apart, but 15 to 18 inches is better.

Since the "seed" is really a fruit containing several seeds, plants tend to come up in clumps and must be thinned out. If the first thinning is done when the plants are about 3 inches high, the plants pulled may be cooked as greens. Later thinnings yield both "baby" beets and tender young tops.

★Early Wonder (Green Top): 50 days. Foliage clean, bright, green; roots round, deep red, smooth, and of excellent quality.

BROCCOLI

This easily-grown and delicious vegetable is also an extremely valuable protective food, rich in calcium, iron, phosphorous and in Vitamins A, C and G. The edible portion is the flower stalk, growing out of the stem of the plant and terminating in a "head" of closely packed flower buds. Broccoli is at its best if these stalks are cut before the flower buds begin to open. Continues to bear over a long period, as small heads appear on the side branches after the central head has been cut.

Seed may be sowed in the open as early as the ground can be worked. In May or June, seedlings must be transplanted to stand about 2½ feet apart. Plants must be staked or given some other form of support. They mature approximately 70 days after transplanting.

For an earlier crop, seed may be sown in a hot bed in March. For most satisfactory results, however, purchase growing plants and set them out as soon as the soil becomes warm. Your nearest Scott Garden Center will have the variety best suited for your area.

For raising from seed, we recommend:

True Italian Sprouting: Large, solid heads that stay green. Profusion of small heads develop after cutting of main head. Tender and delicious.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 60¢; ¼lb. $1.75; lb. $5.00.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS

The buds of this plant look like miniature cabbages and are cooked like cabbage, but have a very delicate and distinctive flavor. Can be grown for an early or a late crop, but are not at their best during the hot months.

For an early crop, plants should be set out, about 2 feet apart, as soon as the ground is workable. Plants ready for setting can be obtained from any Scott Garden Center, or you can raise them yourself by sowing the seed indoors or under glass in February or March.

For a late crop, sow seed outdoors in late May or early June, so that buds will mature before heavy frosts. Light frosts actually improve the flavor. The season can be extended by digging up the plants before the ground freezes and transplanting to a cool, moist cellar or deep cold frame.

The seed variety we recommend is:

Half-Dwarf Improved: 90 days from time plants are set. Forms compact plants about 2 feet tall. Pkt. 15¢; ½oz. 45¢; oz. 75¢; ¼lb. $2.25; lb. $6.75.

CABBAGE

A very popular crop with the home gardener, particularly because it permits him to have varieties which may not be available in many markets.

Most gardeners prefer to set out plants, especially for the early season varieties, and Scott Garden Centers offer a wide selection. Gardeners who prefer to start their own plants should sow the seed under glass in late February or early March, transplanting to open ground as soon as the soil is workable. Plants should stand 1½ to 2 feet apart.

For late crops, sow the seed outdoors about May 1, and transplant when seedlings are several inches high. Allow about 40 days from sowing. The number of days shown for each variety listed below is the time from transplanting to maturity.

Golden Acre (Yellows-Resistant Strain): 64 days. An early strain of the Copenhagen type, with small, uniformly round heads. Tender, crisp, and of fine quality.

Chieftain: 90 days. Solid heads, with nicely savoyed leaves. Pkt. 15¢; ½oz. 40¢; oz. 75¢; ¼lb. $2.25; lb. $6.75.

CARROTS

In the past ten years, there has been a great improvement in the quality of vegetables sold in the market—but there is still a world of difference between carrots dug at maturity when market value is greatest and "baby" carrots dug when flavor and tenderness are greatest. This, plus the fact that carrots are one of the best vegetable sources of vitamin A, and are quite easy to grow, make them a favored crop for the home gardener.

Many varieties are available, and selection is entirely a matter of personal preference. If they must be planted in heavy soil, however, the shorter varieties will be more satisfactory.

Sow the seed, any time after the frost is out of the ground, in rows about 15 inches apart. Cover with ½ inch of soil, and press it down firmly. Thin the seedlings to 2 inches apart in the row.

Carrots, Danvers Half Long

CAULIFLOWER

Culture of cauliflower is the same as cabbage and, as with cabbage, the home gardener will probably prefer to start with plants rather than seed. Plants will be available in all Scott Garden Centers when the season arrives.

Cauliflower, Early Snowball

★Select Early Snowball: 60 days. Extra early and very dependable. Produces deep, solid, pure white heads of medium size and fine quality. Plants are compact, permitting closer planting.

Pkt. 25¢; ¼oz. $1.00; ½oz. $1.75; oz. $3.00.

CELERY

Celery needs a richer soil than almost any other garden plant, so the spot where you intend to grow it should be given an extra quantity of manure, humus, rich compost, or a commercial fertilizer high in nitrogen.

Sow seed indoors or in a hotbed about April 1, barely covering it with soil. When the seedlings are 2 to 3 inches high, thin out or transplant to stand 1½ to 2 inches apart. Transfer to open ground about the end of May, setting the plants about 6 inches apart in rows 2 to 3 feet apart.

Most home gardeners will prefer to start with plants ready to set out.

SWEET CORN

Sweet corn "pays off" at the table to a greater extent than almost any other vegetable the home gardener can raise. Each ear of corn remains at the right stage for eating only a short time. It is ready as soon as the kernels are filled out and 'milky'. In a few days the milk begins to dry and the corn is in the 'dough' stage—tough and lacking in flavor. Also, sweet corn deteriorates very rapidly after it is picked; its sugar begins to turn to starch, and at ordinary summer temperature half the sugar is lost in 24 hours.

Only when you raise your own, can you pick the ears at exactly the right time, and cook it while it is at its best. The old rule, "twenty minutes from the garden to the table" is an excellent one to follow.

Corn is a valuable energy food; it is a good source of vitamin B₁; and the yellow varieties contain carotene from which the body makes vitamin A.

The most popular varieties today are hybrids—varieties produced by crossing different strains to produce a desired combination of characteristics. In general, these produce larger yields, of better quality and greater uniformity in ear characteristics and in time of maturity, and are more resistant to disease. The open-pollinated varieties, however, have by no means disappeared from either home or market gardens.

Corn should be planted when soil is warm and comparatively dry, usually beginning about the middle of May. For a continuous crop, plant varieties maturing at different dates or make successive plantings. Avoid the slow-maturing varieties unless the growing season in your area is long enough to permit them to develop.

Seed can be planted in hills or rows. Hills are placed 2 to 3 feet apart each way; rows 2½ to 3 feet apart. Plant about 6 seeds in each hill, and when plants are 8 inches high, pull out all except the three or four strongest. In rows, thin the plants to stand 12 to 15 inches apart. Depth of planting in either case, should be approximately 2 inches.

CUCUMBERS

A very popular crop with many home gardeners, because most varieties begin to bear quite early in the season and continue for several weeks.

For an early crop, sow the seed indoors or in a cold frame about April 1. Transplant to the garden in the latter part of May, disturbing the roots as little as possible. Sow the main crop directly in the garden late in May, and make successive plantings up to middle or late July if desired.

For either plants or seeds, prepare hills 4 to 6 feet apart, mixing in plenty of manure or compost. Leave the soil in the hills loose, and a little higher than the general level of the garden. In transplanting, set 3 or 4 seedlings in each hill. With seed, sow 8 to 10 and thin out to 3 or 4.

If You Like to Try the Unusual

One of the pleasures of home gardening is the opportunity to try the unusual, to experiment with vegetables that are seldom found in the market. Some of these are grown because of their novel appearance, some because they afford new adventures in eating. Most gardeners will admit, however, that they really grow most items of this type just for the fun of it.

ASPARAGUS BEANS (YARD LONG): 72 days. A pole bean, with round, slender edible pods, 2 feet or more in length.

1/2 pt. 45¢; pt. 75¢; qt. $1.25.

SCARLET RUNNER BEANS: 90 days. Usually grown because of its bright scarlet blossoms, but the pods can be eaten like other snap beans, or allowed to mature as dry shell beans. A pole variety.

1/2 pt. 40¢; pt. 65¢; qt. $1.10; pk. $6.45.

CARDOON: Grown for the fleshy stalks and inner leaves which, when cooked like asparagus, are very tender and have a fine flavor. Culture similar to celery.

Pkt. 15¢; 1/2 oz. 60¢; oz. $1.00; 1/4 lb. $3.00.

CELERIAC (TURNIP-ROOTED CELERY): The roots are the edible portion of this plant. They may be used in salads; as a cooked vegetable; or in soups and stews. Grown like celery, but roots may be stored for winter use. Scott offers the variety known as Large Prague, which is very productive, with large round roots.

Pkt. 15¢; 1/2 oz. 60¢; oz. $1.00; 1/4 lb. $3.00.

CHICORY: Two varieties are offered—Large Rooted (120 days), 12 to 14 inches long. Grown for its roots, which may be cooked and served like turnips; and Catalogna (65 days), grown for its fresh tender shoots which are used like greens.

Large Rooted: Pkt. 15¢; 1/2 oz. 30¢; oz. 50¢; 1/4 lb. $1.50; lb. $4.50.

Catalogna: Pkt. 15¢; 1/2 oz. 40¢; oz. 65¢; 1/4 lb. $1.75; lb. $5.00.

CHINESE CABBAGE (CELERY CABBAGE): Now available in many markets, but deserves even wider popularity. Crisp, tender and delicious when eaten raw like celery, or when served as salad or cole slaw. May also be cooked like cabbage. If plants are pulled before frost, placed close together with roots in damp sand, and kept in a cool place, they will stay in good condition for several months.

Several varieties are available, but we recommend Michihli, which produces heads about 18 inches high and 4 inches or more in diameter. Seed should be sowed in late June or early July. Plant in shallow drills 2 feet apart. Thin or transplant the seedlings to stand 15 inches apart. Requires approximately 75 days.

Pkt. 15¢; 1/2 oz. 35¢; oz. 65¢; 1/4 lb. $1.75; lb. $5.00.

COLLARDS: 80 days. This non-heading member of the cabbage family is largely grown for greens, in the southern states. We offer the variety known as Georgia or Southern. Sow outdoors in the spring, when soil and weather are warm, and give the plants plenty of room to develop. Will stand light freezing—in fact, flavor is improved by it.

Pkt. 10¢; oz. 25¢; 1/4 lb. 75¢; lb. $2.00.

CORN SALAD (FETTICUS): 60 days. Rapid growth and hardness make this popular as a substitute for lettuce, but it may also be cooked like spinach or used for garnishing like parsley. Sow in the spring after the soil has become thoroughly warm, for summer use. For early spring use, sow seed just late enough to permit plants to be well-established before frost, and cover the plants with a light mulch of straw or leaves.

Pkt. 15¢; 1/2 oz. 25¢; oz. 45¢; 1/4 lb. $1.25.

CUCUZZI SQUASH (NEW GUINEA BEAN): 60 days. Not a true squash, but an edible gourd which is used like the long, narrow summer squashes. Fruit is light green, 2 to 2 1/2 feet long, and 2 1/2 inches in diameter at its thickest part. Flesh is thick and tender. Plant in hills 8 to 10 feet apart, after soil is warm and dry, and all danger of frost has passed.

Pkt. 25¢; oz. 50¢; 1/4 lb. $1.50.

DANDELION: 60 days. In your lawn, it's a weed—but dandelion leaves used as "greens" have a distinctive flavor that makes them popular with many people. If the leaves are "bunched" and tied, the center of the plant will blanch to a clear white, resembling endive. Sow seed early in shallow drills, and thin to about 1 foot apart. For early spring use, sow late in the season and cover plants lightly over the winter. A rich soil is best. Variety offered by Scott is Improved French.

Pkt. 25¢; 1/2 oz. 60¢; oz. $1.00.

HORSE RADISH: If you like horse radish, enjoy the full flavor of the freshly-grated, home-grown product. You can raise it in one season by starting from roots. Scott offers Maliner Kren, which is the largest and most vigorous variety.

Roots: Doz. 75¢; 100, $4.75; 1000, $40.00.

SPAGHETTI SQUASH: 85 days. Interesting because the flesh, when cooked, breaks up into "strings" resembling spaghetti. Fruits are yellowish orange, about 8 inches long and 5 inches in diameter. May be used for summer or stored for winter.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 35¢; 1/4 lb. $1.00; lb. $3.00.

BLACK MEXICAN SWEET CORN: 88 days. A sweet and tender variety of sweet corn, with large ears, and broad bluish-white kernels which turn to a violet color when cooked.

1/2 pt. 25¢; pt. 45¢; qt. 75¢; pk. $4.25; bu. $15.00.

POP CORN: A few hills will provide a winter's supply. Two varieties—Golden Queen and White Rice. Both varieties pop pure white, either will give complete satisfaction.

Pkt. 10¢; lb. 35¢; 2 lb. 65¢.

CRESS: The pungent and peppery flavor of the cresses make them excellent for garnishing or for addition to salads. Scott offers two varieties, both very easily grown.

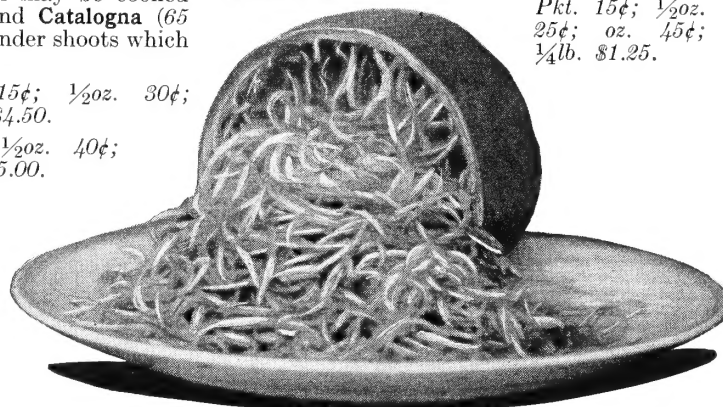

Upland: 40 days. Can be sown broadcast at any time from early spring on.

Leaves can be used up until the time the plants form seed.

Pkt. 15¢; 1/2 oz. 35¢; oz. 60¢.

Water Cress: 50 days. Is the true old-fashioned cress. Sow the seed in shallow water, along the bank of a stream. Needs no further attention.

Pkt. 20¢; 1/2 oz. 60¢; oz. $1.00.

Herbs Give Distinction . . . to Gardens and to Food

Much of the difference between ordinary and expert cooking lies in the knowledge of when and how to use herbs, for herbs can often turn a commonplace dish into a delightful and memorable treat. Appreciation of good cooking seems to have grown in recent years—at any rate most good food stores now offer a far wider variety of dried herbs than in the past. At the same time, the family herb garden is coming back into favor because many of the people interested in herb cookery prefer to use fresh herbs when possible, and to prepare their own supply for winter use rather than depend on the commercial products.

There are no "authorities" on herb cookery. Many articles and books have been written on the subject, but each reflects the personal preferences of the author. It is well to start with these until you become familiar with the qualities of the various herbs, then use your own ingenuity to meet the tastes of your family.

Herbs are quite easy to grow. Some gardeners plan the planting so as to make an herb border, while others give herbs any odd corner that happens to be available. The essentials are a sunny location and soil that is not too poor. Sow seed early in the spring and thin out plants as necessary.

Anise

Dill

ANISE: Seed and leaves both have a slightly sweet flavor. The fresh leaves are excellent with both vegetable and fruit salads, and either fresh or dried leaves add an unusual and delicious flavor to boiled sea foods. Also used as flavoring for cakes. The seed is used whole as a topping on candies, cookies, coffee cakes and rolls; whole or ground seed to flavor boiled shellfish and meat stews.

Pkt. 25¢; 1/2oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢.

SWEET BASIL: An aromatic herb with a wide variety of uses. Leaves and tops may be used fresh or dried. They impart a piquant flavor to tomato and other vegetable juices, and to canape spreads of various kinds, as well as to tomato, potato, minestrone and other soups. Many cooks use Basil with beef, lamb, ham and liver; with egg and cheese dishes; with poultry and game; with a number of vegetables, and in stuffings. It is popular for garnishing salads and fruit desserts. Some like it in creamed sauces and in tomato and other spaghetti sauces; others do not. Experiment until you find where you like its zesty flavor. Pkt. 20¢; 1/2oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢.

Small-Leaved Sweet Basil: Another variety of Basil, with smaller leaves, used in much the same way. Pkt. 20¢; 1/2oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢.

Florence Fennel

Lavender

BORAGE: Europeans cook borage leaves as spinach is cooked here, but Americans usually prefer borage mixed with other greens such as spinach and beet tops. The fresh leaves are also excellent as an ingredient of vegetable salads; sprigs, tips and leaves are used with cold drinks just as mint is used.

Pkt. 15¢; 1/2oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢.

CARAWAY: The young shoots and small tender leaves are used to flavor salads, vegetables such as cabbage, cauliflower and turnips; soups and pork. Seeds (produced in the second year) are used to flavor bread, cakes and candies; stews and poultry; and some vegetables. The roots, which have an entirely different flavor, may be boiled and served with butter or with a cream sauce.

Pkt. 20¢; 1/2oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢.

CHIVES: A hardy, perennial member of the onion family, with small, slender hollow "leaves" resembling onion seedlings and having a mild onion flavor. The "leaves" are chopped fine and used for flavoring salads, stews, soups, etc., and also for garnishing wherever the slight onion flavor is desired.

Once established, they continue to grow year after year. Many gardeners also grow chives in pots indoors, keeping them available for use the greater part of the year.

Pkt. 25¢; 1/2oz. 90¢; oz. $1.50.

CORIANDER: Grown for its aromatic seeds, which are used primarily in the flavoring of cookies, candies and some soups. The ground seed is a common ingredient of Danish pastries.

Pkt. 25¢; 1/2oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢.

DILL: Probably best known for the use of its seed in the preparation of dill pickles, but also liked by many as a flavoring for soups, some strongly-scented vegetables and fish, and certain salads. The tender leaves and stems, chopped fine, add wonderful flavor to sauces and other foods, and are particularly effective as a garnish on broiled steaks and chops. Pkt. 15¢; oz. 25¢; 1/4lb. 75¢; lb. $2.00.

Sage

Summer Savory

FLORENCE FENNEL (Finocchio): Stems may be blanched and eaten raw or cooked like other green vegetables. Leaves and stems are used when young and tender to flavor salads, sauces and soups, and also as a garnish. Pkt. 15¢; 1/2oz. 30¢; oz. 50¢.

Sweet Fennel: Very similar to Florence Fennel. Used chiefly for garnishing. Pkt. 15¢; 1/2oz. 30¢; oz. 50¢.

LAVENDER: The chief uses of lavender as a culinary herb are in the flavoring of fruit jellies (by dropping a few flower petals in the bottom of each glass as the jelly is made) and in cold drinks (by adding a flowering sprig to each glass). It is grown primarily for long-lasting fragrance of the dried flowers.

Pkt. 25¢; 1/4oz. 75¢; 1/2oz. $1.25; oz. $2.00.

SWEET MARJORAM: Has pleasant, spicy flavor, less pungent than sage; very fragrant. The variety of culinary uses is almost endless. The fresh or dried leaves of marjoram are excellent for flavoring creamed soups; they add zest to meat spreads; they make a delightful garnish for broiled or baked fish. They are popular in souffles, rarebits and omelets; they add interest to veal, pork, lamb and other meats, and especially to hash, croquettes, stews, meat pies and other dishes made from "leftovers."

Pkt. 20¢; 1/2oz. 90¢; oz. $1.50.

Sweet Marjoram

Thyme

ROSEMARY: Fresh leaves of Rosemary make excellent garnishes for fruit cups and fruited drinks. Fresh or dried leaves are used for flavoring soups, stews and sauces; omelets; fish; poultry; game; broiled or roasted meats; vegetables. Spicy taste and fragrance make this one of the most popular of all culinary herbs.

Pkt. 25¢; 1/2oz. 90¢; oz. $1.50.

SAGE: The fragrant, strongly flavored leaves of sage, fresh or dried, are widely used in all kinds of foods. Stuffings represent the most common use, but sage is also popular for flavoring cream and cottage cheese, fish, meats, soups, stews and vegetables. Because of its strong flavor, it should be used very sparingly—meats, for example, are often merely rubbed lightly with the crushed or powdered leaves before roasting.

Pkt. 20¢; 1/2oz. 90¢; oz. $1.50.

SUMMER SAVORY: The pleasant piquant flavor of this herb, particularly of the fresh leaves, makes it extremely popular in a wide variety of foods—vegetable juices, vegetable salads, cooked vegetables, meats, soups, sauces, fish, eggs and poultry. The young leaves are often used as substitute for parsley or chives. Like other herbs, it may be dried for winter use. Pkt. 20¢; 1/2oz. 45¢; oz. 75¢.

THYME: Another herb of many uses, particularly in salads, vegetables, chowders, soups and stews—but also in custards and with meats, fish and seafoods. Very popular in poultry stuffings, and in all kinds of tomato sauces. Pkt. 25¢; 1/2oz. 90¢; oz. $1.50.

EGG PLANT

The surest and easiest way to raise egg plant is to buy seedlings ready to set out, about June 1. Your Scott Garden Center will have the right varieties for this area.

To grow egg plant from seed, sow indoors or in hotbeds, in mid-March or early April. When seedlings are about 3 inches high, transplant them to 3 or 4 inch paper pots or to dirt-bands. Set out in the garden about June 1, spacing them to stand 2 to 2½ feet apart each way. Water freely.

New Hampshire Hybrid: 75 days. Dark purple, pear-shaped fruit. A heavy producer. Pkt. 15¢; ½oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢; ¼lb. $2.75; lb. $8.00.

Early Long Purple: 78 days. Fruits are dark purple, about 7½ inches long and 2½ inches in diameter, smooth-skinned. Good quality and flavor.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 90¢; ¼lb. $2.75; lb. $8.00.

★Black Beauty: 80 days. Fruits are extra large, smooth, purplish black, and of fine quality. Very prolific.

Pkt. 15¢; ½oz. 50¢; oz. 90¢; ¼lb. $2.75; lb. $8.00.

ENDIVE

The mildly bitter flavor of endive makes a favorite ingredient in tossed salads, or as a substitute for lettuce in other salads. Many people like it braised with butter or cooked in other ways.

Endive is very hardy; it may be planted as early in the spring as the ground can be worked, and as late as the middle of July. Sow the seed in shallow drills about 15 inches apart and thin the plants to stand 10 to 12 inches apart. When plants are full grown, tie the tips of the outer leaves together over the center of the plant to blanch the heart. Blanching usually takes about 1 week.

★Full Heart (Escarolle): 90 days. Large leaves, broad compact head. Partially self-blanching. Very good quality.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 35¢; ¼lb. 90¢; lb. $2.50.

★Green Curled: 90 days. Large handsome plants with finely cut and fringed leaves of dark green. Blanching easily.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 35¢; ¼lb. 90¢; lb. $2.50.

Green Curled Red Ribbed: 95 days. Finely curled dark green leaves, with midribs having a red tinge. Dense center growth tends toward self-blanching.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 35¢; ¼lb. 90¢; lb. $2.50.

KOHLRABI

The edible portion of Kohlrabi is a bulb which grows just above the ground. Flesh is sweet and fine grained. Young bulbs may be eaten raw, but Kohlrabi is usually cooked, and served with butter, sour cream or white sauce. It is at its best for cooking when bulbs are about half-grown.

Plant as early in the spring as the ground can be worked, sowing the seed in shallow drills. Thin the plants to stand about 6 inches apart. Successive plantings can be made up to the middle of July.

★White Vienna: 55 days. Bulbs of medium size, with white skin and tender, delicately-flavored flesh. Leaves are few and small.

Pkt. 15¢; ½oz. 30¢; oz. 50¢; ¼lb. $1.50; lb. $4.50.

Purple Vienna: 60 days. Somewhat larger than White Vienna. Skin purple, flesh white. Very reliable.

Pkt. 15¢; ½oz. 30¢; oz. 50¢; ¼lb. $1.50; lb. $4.50.

KALE

For many reasons, Kale (sometimes called Borecole) should be in the garden of every family where "greens" are popular. Its flavor is distinctive and delicious; it is exceptionally rich in the essential vitamins and minerals; and it is easy to grow, being both spring-hardy and fall-hardy. First plantings can be made as early as the ground can be worked, and light frost improves the flavor of kale, rather than injuring it.

Sow the seed in shallow drills, and thin or transplant to stand about 2 feet apart each way. Late plantings need not leave time for the plant to mature fully—the small leaves are tender and delicious. For such plantings, the seed may be sowed broadcast.

Kale

★Dwarf Curled Blue Scotch: 55 days. Small compact plants with finely-curved, bluish green leaves, which retain their color.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 40¢; ¼lb. $1.25; lb. $3.50.

Tall Curled Scotch: 80 days. A hardy variety, which grows about 2½ feet tall. Leaves are large; deep yellowish green in color, and finely curled.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 40¢; ¼lb. $1.25; lb. $3.50.

LEEK

Leeks belong to the onion family, but have a definitely sweet flavor. They are very popular in stews and soups, and are also cooked in a number of other ways.

Seed should be sowed early in the spring, in shallow drills. When plants are about 5 inches high, transplant them to stand 6 to 8 inches apart in rows. At the time of transplanting, it is a good idea to cut plants back about one-third.

Large London Flag: 140 days. The hardiest and most popular variety. Pronounced flavor.

Pkt. 20¢; ½oz. 45¢; oz. 75¢; ¼lb. $2.25; lb. $6.50.

Musselburg: 140 days. Larger than London Flag, but with a milder flavor.

Pkt. 20¢; ½oz. 45¢; oz. 75¢; ¼lb. $2.25; lb. $6.50.

MUSHROOMS

If you have a cellar or dark room where the temperature can be kept between 50 and 60 degrees, you can raise mushrooms. We furnish printed directions with each order, or will send for 25c postpaid an illustrated booklet on mushroom culture.

Spore-Culture Mushroom Spawn, Northern Grown: Pure and vigorous. Sold in the form of compressed bricks, each of which will plant about 16 feet of bed.

Single brick, 45¢; 10 for $4.00; 50 for $17.50.

LETTUCE

Crisp lettuce, fresh from the garden, is one of the most popular of all home garden crops. Many varieties are available, to meet every taste and to provide a continuous supply from May to late fall.

Selection of varieties is almost entirely a matter of personal preference, except that the green, leafy types are usually richer in vitamins and minerals.

Make the first sowing as soon as the ground can be worked, making the seed bed as fine and mellow as possible. Scatter the seed in shallow furrows at least 15 inches apart and cover lightly. Thin to stand 3 to 4 inches apart.

HEADING VARIETIES

Bibb: 65 days. Small, early variety of the butterhead type. Thick tender leaves, deep green outside, blanched to creamy yellow.

MUSKMELONS (CANTALOUPE)

Muskmelons require close to three months of warm weather, a very rich sandy loam soil, and plenty of room (hills must be from 5 to 6 feet apart). If these conditions can be met, make sure you include Muskmelons in your garden plans. They will be a most welcome part of the family food supply.

Prepare the hills by digging the soil to a depth of one foot and mixing in plenty of manure or fertilizer with the bottom soil. Plant only when the soil has warmed up, putting several seeds in each hill and thinning to leave the 3 or 4 strongest plants.

For an earlier crop, start the seed in pots or dirtbands indoors or in a hot bed, transplanting to the garden when the soil has become warm.

ONIONS

Onions may be grown from seed, sets or plants. Seed may be sown as early in the spring as the ground can be worked, in rows 12 to 15 inches apart. Soil should be fine and well prepared, and seed should be covered to a depth of about ½ inch. For dry onions, thin the plants to stand 3 to 4 inches apart.

Sets may be sown equally early, in rows about an inch deep and 15 inches apart. Space the sets about 1 inch apart for green onions, 3 inches apart for dry onions.

Onion plants should be spaced the same as onion sets. Plants may be purchased, or you can raise your own from seed by sowing in hot beds early in March.

Green onions from seed are ready for use in about 50 days; dry onions in the time shown for each variety. Sets reduce this time by about 15 days; plants by about 30 days.

PEPPERS

Peppers are popular because of their distinctive flavor. Some varieties are so mild and sweet that they can be eaten like tomatoes, while at the other extreme are varieties so hot and pungent that they are used for seasoning only. The green varieties are excellent sources of vitamins A and C.

The easiest way to raise peppers is to start with growing plants, and choice varieties will be available at all Scott Garden Centers when planting time arrives. A moderately rich, light soil is required, and plenty of warmth at all stages.

To raise peppers from seed, sow the seed indoors, in a hotbed in March. When the second or third leaf has developed, transfer the plants to pots or dirtbaths. Set in the open garden early in June, spacing the plants to stand about 2½ feet apart each way.

Days to maturity given for the different varieties are figured from the time plants are set in the garden.

For late summer and fall use, sow the summer and winter varieties, which are not injured by hot weather. Winter radishes should be sown late in June; summer varieties any time up to August 1.

Radishes do best in loose, rich, deeply prepared soil where growth will be rapid and steady.

RHUBARB

Rhubarb may be baked or stewed for immediate eating or for canning, and either fresh or canned rhubarb makes an excellent pie filling. In all of these forms it has high and well-deserved popularity.

It is a satisfying crop for the home garden because plants, once established continue to yield heavily for ten years or more.

Rhubarb can be raised from seed, but only very special circumstances would make it worth while even for the market gardener, as plants from seed may not be true to type. The best plan is to start with roots, planting them with the crown about 1 inch below the surface. Water the plants, if needed, while they are producing, and dress with manure or organic fertilizer when the cutting season is over.

Do not cut any stalks the first year after planting, and cut very lightly the second year. Thereafter, cut as desired.

Victoria: Broad, thick tender stalks, shaded red. Very productive.

Roots 35¢ each; $3.00 per dozen.

RUTABAGA (SWEDE TURNIP)

Sow during June or early July in rows ½ inch deep and 18 inches apart. Thin seedlings to stand 8 to 10 inches apart.

★Improved Purple-Top: 90 days. Large, globular roots. Skin smooth; light-yellow with purple top. Flesh yellow, firm, and of fine quality. Good winter keeper. Pkt. 10¢; oz. 20¢; ¼lb. 50¢; lb. $1.50.

SALSIFY

Salsify is often called "Oyster Plant" or "Vegetable Oyster", because of its flavor. Seed should be sown early in the spring, in rows 18 inches apart. Cover to a depth of 1 inch. Thin plants to stand 3 inches apart. Roots may be left in the ground all winter, to be dug as wanted.

Mammoth Sandwich Island: 120 days. Roots often 10 to 12 inches long, tender, and of a delicious oyster-like flavor.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 50¢; ¼lb. $1.50; lb. $5.00.

SPINACH

Alternately over-rated and under-rated as to food value, spinach now seems safely established as one of a number of "greens" which are excellent sources of both minerals and vitamins, especially vitamins A and C. Properly cooked—which means briefly and without added water—it is a flavorful addition to the family menu.

Spinach goes to seed in hot weather, hence should be planted early enough to mature before mid-summer, or late enough to mature in the fall. Sow seed in drills ½ inch deep and 12 inches apart. Thin the plants to stand 2 inches apart in the row.

New Zealand Spinach, a distinct type, thrives in hot, dry weather. This is a large, bushy plant, of which only the young leaves and tips of the branches are edible. Seed should be sown in rows 3 feet apart, and plants should stand about 1 foot apart.

In all varieties, the time from planting until the spinach is ready for use depends on the weather. Days given are average for spring sowing.

Pkt. 15¢; oz. 30¢; ¼lb. 90¢; lb. $2.50.

SQUASH

The varieties of squash show greater differences than any other common vegetable—in size, shape, color and flavor. The fast-growing summer squashes are best when picked well before maturity, when the outer skin is tender and the seeds barely formed. At this stage, the whole squash is edible, and most delicious. If left until later, skin and seeds must be removed. The skin of the winter squashes is never edible and—with the exception of Acorn variety, they are not used until they reach full maturity.

Both summer and winter squash require fertile, deep soil. Seed should be planted in hills as soon as the ground is warm and dry. Plant in hills, the summer varieties about 4 feet apart, the winter varieties about 8 feet apart. When the plants are about 5 inches tall, thin to leave 3 or 4 plants in each hill.

TOMATOES

Few, if any, garden crops can match tomatoes for dependability and all-around satisfaction. They are delicious, whether eaten whole, sliced, included in salads, cooked, canned or made into juice. Only citrus fruits can match them as a source of vitamin C and, unlike many other vegetables, their vitamin content is not destroyed by cooking. They are among the easiest of all vegetables to can, and, since the yield is heavy in proportion to the garden space required, there is real economy in raising your own tomatoes for canning or juice.

Most home gardeners prefer to buy tomato plants ready to set out. Scott's Garden Centers offer a wide selection, including a number of the unusual varieties as well as the best main-crop varieties for this area.

Major plantings should not be made until all danger of frost is past, but many gardeners like to get a head start by earlier setting of a few plants of some of the quickest-maturing varieties, covering them with Hot-kaps whenever frost threatens.

If tomatoes are to be permitted to grow untrained and unpruned, plants should be set in the garden about four feet apart each way; if they are to be staked or pruned, the distance can be 2 to 2½ feet. Use of Transplantone when seedlings are set in the garden will help them "take hold" more quickly and develop more rapidly.

Once tomato plants begin to bear, they will continue until frost. Green tomatoes, picked before the first frost, wrapped in newspapers and kept in a cool place indoors, will continue to ripen evenly for several weeks.

To raise plants from seed, start in late February or March. Sow the seed in shallow boxes or pots, covering to a depth of ½ inch, and place in a warm, sunny window. As soon as the seedlings are strong enough, thin or transplant them to stand 3 to 4 inches apart. When they are about 3 inches high, transfer them to small paper pots or dirt-bands.

SCOTT'S Flower Seeds

Popular Annuals, New and Old

PLANTING INFORMATION

For best results with any flowers, follow the planting instructions on the packet.

Most annuals may, if desired, be started indoors. Start the seeds in a seed "flat" filled with Terra-Lite or light, rich soil. Tamp firmly and mark off into shallow furrows about an inch apart, sow the seed thinly, and label each row. Cover the seed with fine soil, mixed with sand, pressing it down firmly. . . . Sprinkle lightly.

Cover the flat with a sheet of glass and—until seedlings appear—with a newspaper. Keep in a warm place, and water from time to time, making sure that soil becomes neither dry nor soggy.

When seedlings break through, set the box where it will receive maximum sunlight, and, as soon as the first leaves are formed, remove the glass. Transplant once before setting out in the garden.

Pansies

PANSIES

Pansy plants, ready to set out, will be carried by all Scott Garden Centers, and most home gardeners prefer to use these rather than start from seed. Gardeners who prefer to grow their own plants, or to try some of the less common varieties can plan for either early or late blooming.

For early blooming, sow the seed in late July or August, protecting the young plants over the winter by covering them with Miltex Buckwheat Hull Mulch. For late blooming, sow seed indoors or in a cold frame in February or March, and transplant to open ground late in April.

MASQUERADE

Floribunda Roses are very useful plants for landscaping purposes. Hardy and healthy, they bloom all season with very little care. Some varieties have flowers of exquisite pointed form; others are smaller, carried in generous clusters. As high or low hedges, in borders with other shrubs, as specimens at a doorway, Floribundas prove to be indispensable to the modern home gardener.

BASIC PRUNING PRACTICE

Cutting in Relation to Buds—a. correct; b. too much surface; c. too long a stub; d. too close to bud.

In all pruning make the cut just above a bud that points in the direction in which new growth is desired, and at a rather abrupt angle as shown in (a) in the illustration. A cut made as at (b) exposes an unnecessary amount of wound tissue, as at (c) leaves too long a stub and as at (d) is too close to the bud which would probably die.

Keep your feet on the ground. Don't use step ladders, chairs or other make-shifts to prune the upper branches—use long handled pruners.

Don't climb trees—it's too hazardous—that's the job for a professional arborist who has proper equipment and knows how to use it.

With the Gravely Tractor you take the drudgery out of virtually every "outside job" around your home—in garden, lawn, field and driveway. It is, without exception, the most versatile small tractor on earth, built to do dozens of jobs and do them all well.

The Gravely's 5 horsepower engine provides plenty of power, too. There's no danger that it will "let you down" on the jobs where you most need it.

You can start now to make modern country living more enjoyable, to get more accomplished and still have more leisure, by starting your Gravely plan now. Just list those tough, time-consuming, back-breaking jobs around the place, then stop in at any Scott store and find out how easily you can handle them with a Gravely.

Then, work out your program. You may want to begin with the tractor itself and perhaps only a single attachment. You can pay cash, getting S&H Green Stamps as a cash discount, or payments can be arranged to suit your budget.

Additional attachments and accessories may be purchased individually as you need them, also on budget payments if desired. If you have immediate need for several attachments, you can of course get everything at once.

When you have used a Gravely, you will wonder how you managed to get along without it. It is easy to operate, having all controls right at your finger-tips. Speed selector handle gives choice of three speeds in each of the two forward gears, and there is also a reverse gear. Power is transmitted to the job through gears and splined steel shafts—there are no belts or chains to slip or wear.

Attachments are easily installed or removed. Only four bolts are required to hold each in place. In the Gravely, an attachment isn't merely something that is added on—each attachment is designed as an integral part of the tractor. This, plus Gravely's unique swivel action which enables the attachment to follow the contour of the ground independent of tractor wheel position, makes every attachment give maximum performance.

Every attachment is protected against shock damage by Gravely's special Safety Clutch, which dissipates the shock and stalls the tractor without harm to either tractor or attachment. The Clutch transmits the full power of the engine to the attachment, but saves the equipment from breakage.

From any point of view, you owe yourself a Gravely. Stop in now and arrange to get one.

HERE ARE A FEW OF THE JOBS YOU CAN DO WITH A GRAVELY

Prepare ground for planting in one operation: With the Rotary Plow attachment, one operation makes a perfect seedbed. The Rotary Plow "chews up" the soil finely and evenly; cuts up weeds and trash and mixes them in the soil; distributes fertilizer through the soil. No harrowing needed—and no waiting until it is convenient for someone else to do the job.

The Gravely Rotary Plow does not depend on traction. The plow tool is powered by direct drive from the engine.

Mow Lawns or Cut Weeds: There is a Gravely Mower Attachment to meet every need—single, 30-inch reel type mowers for fine lawns of moderate size; gang mowers of the reel type for very large lawns; rotary mowing units that handle short grass and tall weeds equally well; sickle-bar mowers for the toughest jobs.

Remove Snow from Walks and Driveways: Gravely's Blade-Type Snow Plow attachment is 48 inches wide, and will handle snow up to 14 inches deep. Blade is designed to roll the snow out of the way instead of just pushing it, and the blade angle can be adjusted to throw snow to the right, left or straight ahead. The Snowblower handles snow up to 4 feet deep, throwing it as much as 30 feet away, at any angle. Does the job, whether snow is wet or dry, hard packed or powdery.

Cultivate Farm or Garden Crops: Gravely has cultivator tool set-ups to meet every farm and garden need, some for front attachment, others of the rear-hitch type.

Other jobs you can do with your Gravely include: Bulldozing; Lawn Rolling; Hauling; Mulching Leaves and Weeds; Raking Hay; Harrowing; Terracing; Felling Trees; Sawing Wood; Spreading Fertilizer; Seeding; Spraying Crops, Shrubbery and Trees;—and even that is only a partial list!

ROTO-HOE: LOW-COST POWER FOR SUBURBAN LIVING

Roto-Hoe was designed to provide a low-cost, light-weight power tool to handle the lawn and garden tasks confronting the suburban resident, and also to handle certain light-duty work on farms and large gardens. For these purposes, it is one of the most popular tools available.

The Power Unit consists of a steel frame, mounted on two 10-inch, rubber-tired wheels, and carrying a Lauson 2-horsepower, 4-cycle gasoline engine. The engine is equipped with an automotive type carburetor, oil bath air cleaner, oil pump, and rope starter.

Attachments available include a tiller-cultivator (to which lawn aerating discs may be attached); self-propelled Roto-Cutter; Edger; Sprayer; Snow Blower.

TILLING

Although Roto-Hoe was not originally designed for tilling, most owners soon found that it was highly satisfactory for this purpose in light soils, especially when areas to be tilled were relatively small. To extend its usefulness for this purpose, special teeth have been developed which are available as optional equipment. With these, larger areas and heavier soils can be tilled satisfactorily.

Even with these teeth, however, Roto-Hoe is not recommended for tilling through turf or heavy sod, or for tilling large lawns and gardens.

CULTIVATION

As a Cultivator, Roto-Hoe has an extremely wide field of usefulness. It pays its way, even for the home gardener, since cultivating is normally done at least half a dozen times during the season while tilling is a once-a-year task.

Farmers, market gardeners, nurserymen and other professional growers find that cultivating with Roto-Hoe keeps the soil in excellent condition. It is so easy to handle that employees prefer it to heavier equipment, and its low price and low operating cost make Roto-Hoe cultivating extremely inexpensive.

LAWN CARE

Roto-Hoe's Premier Model 2200 Twin Roto-Cutter is a self-propelled unit, equally efficient in tall weeds and on the finest lawns. The blade is of advanced design, clean-cutting and easy to sharpen. The fully-guarded cutting unit extends beyond the wheels, giving a cut close to edges of walks, driveways, etc. Cuts 22-inch swath. A push-type Roto-Cutter attachment (Model 55), cutting a 20 inch swath, is also available.

SNOW REMOVAL

The Snow Densa-Thrower attachment picks up snow, condenses it, and throws it out a chute to either side of the machine. Cleans a swath 16 inches wide.

SPRAYING

A high-quality Power Sprayer at reasonable cost—that's Roto-Zephyr. High pressure, adjustable spray, phosphor bronze pump, agitating tank with screen and relief valve and no splash cover. Tank capacity of 5 gallons is adequate for all home garden and tree needs, and for many farm, greenhouse and estate requirements.

EDGING

Roto-Hoe Safe-Speed Edger makes edging of driveways, walks, flower beds and lawns easy. Six sharp knives rotating at high speed do the job. Depth of cut is adjustable to $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

Roto-Hoe and Cultivator, Roto-Cutter and Snow Densa-Thrower attachments are carried in stock at all Scott Garden Centers. Other attachments are available on special order from the factory in Ohio. Budget payments arranged if desired; S&H Green Stamps given with cash purchases.

Model 148H, Power Unit only, $79.75; Attachments: Roto-Hoe, $49.75; Edger, $27.50; Model 2200 Roto-Cutter, $44.50; Model 55 Roto-Cutter, $32.50; Sprayer, $79.00; Snow Thrower, $58.00.
